ARE NOT FAVORED
BY THE BRITISHOBSERVATIONS OF A MILITARY
EXPERT ON GERMAN
ARTILLERY.(By Associated Press.) LONDON, Oct. 29.—Although the big guns used by the Germans have been the surprise of the war and are accredited with having caused the fall of Liege, Namur and Antwerp, some military experts in England question the wisdom of carrying such weapons into the field, regarding them as a burden which an army cannot afford to transport.Colonel F. N. Meade, discussing the heavy guns, says in The Standard:
"It would be interesting to obtain the exact facts and calculate what the policy of taking the 42-centimeter and 28-centimeter howitzers into the field really cost the Germans in loss of transport power for the food of the troops. I am willing to grant that the 42-centimeter weapon was admirably adapted for its purpose of destroying steel and concrete targets presented by the forts of Liege and Namur. But seeing that the weight of one of the shells is nearly equal to the weight of a whole square meal for one of their battalions, would not the available horsepower, whether mechanical or actual, have been far better employed in hauling food for men to the front in the first instance?"Military experts writing for the English press say that big guns are not really a novelty. The new feature is their general use in the recent campaigns. Heavy guns were tried in the Franco-Prussian war over much the same territory where recent fighting has taken place, but their movement was found too much of a burden.England has constructed a more formidable weapon than the German howitzer. It is Mallet's mortar, which was built for use in the Crimea war, but not completed in time to go into the siege. The mortar is now at Woolwich arsenal. It was built in sections for transport and has a thirty-six inch bore and abursting power charge of 850 pounds of gunpowder. It was tested at Plumstead marshes and a shell sent with a full powder charge penetrated 18 feet and blew out a crater sixty feet in diameter.NORWAY BUSINESS PROSTRATED BY LACK OF MONEYSUSPENSION OF ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT THROWS
3,000 OUT OF WORK.(By Associated Press.) CHRISTIANA, Oct. 29.—Some of the great construction companies in Norway financed with English capital have had to stop work, as payments from England have been cut off. Several of these companies have been harnessing Norwegian water falls for electric power. The Nitrogen Products and Carbide Co., Limited, for instance, has been erecting machinery to develop 100,000 horse power, but after having spent a few million crowns, it has entirely ceased operations, throwing about a thousand men out of work. Mining companies, exporting ore to England, Belgium and France, have also stopped, as their market at present is closed. About 3,000 hands in this industry are idle. The great industrial factories are kept going as before the war, and there is even a greater demand for workmen than there are men to fill the places. On the government railway, under construction, where wages are as high as five dollars a day, they cannot get hands enough.There is also plenty of employment for sailors in the merchant marine, and wages are raised considerably because of the danger of floating mines. Two Norwegian steamers have thus far been blown up by these machines. The fishing fleet has kept at work in the North sea and had very good catches.

AMUSEMENTS

FINE PICTURE COMING TO THE BUTLER TOMORROWAt the Butler tomorrow afternoon and evening an exceptionally strong feature will be shown, "The Birth of the Star Spangled Banner," an historical drama, by J. W. Blake, in two parts.It was just one hundred years ago that the national anthem of the United States came into existence. In this film we have attempted to present the dramatic events which led to its creation, in a realistic and accurate manner.When the combined military and naval forces of the British were threatening Washington during the fall of 1814, President Madison, fearing for the safety of the Declaration of Independence, sent it, in the care of Captain Potter, his aide, to the commandant of Fort Mifflin at Baltimore.On his way to Baltimore Potter stopped at the house of Dr. Beanes.
While they were at dinner a British reconnoitering party, consisting of General Ross and his aides, invested the house. Potter and Helen Beanes took refuge behind a secret panel in the dining room. From this position Potter heard General Ross say that Baltimore would be attacked by land and sea within two days. To save Dr. Beanes from torture when the captain's hat was discovered, Potter jumped from his hiding place, and, after holding the British officer at the point of his pistol, escaped. Dr.
Beanes was taken aboard the British cartel ship while Potter delivered his mission and warning of the British attack to the commandant of Fort Mifflin.Helen Beanes applied to President Madison to help her father, and the president sent one of his aides and a certain Francis Scott Key to interview Admiral Cockburn. Admiral Cockburn agreed to release the doctor, but insisted that both Americans should remain aboard the cartel ship "Minden" until the forthcoming battle was over.So Key was forced to watch the long bombardment of Fort Mifflin throughout the long night.The rockets red glare, The bombs bursting in air, Gave proof through the night That our flag was still there."But toward morning the fire of the fort slackened and Key feared it had been surrendered. His feelings, when the first rays of the sun fell on the duttering flag, are embodied in the great song he wrote for his country.
This film is a masterpiece of dramatic production which will bring every good American out of his seat and make him cheer until his throat is hoarse.The usual 10 cent price of admission will be charged.—Adv.

BUTLER THEATER

At the Butler this evening an unusually strong programme will be presented, as follows: "Grouch, the Engineer," an unusually strong railroad drama by the Kalem company; a split reel Biograph showing two comedies, "Spending It Quick" and "Baseball is a Grand Old Game," and a two-reel Vitaphone drama featuring Maurice Costello, "The Blood Ruby." To secure the precious gem, two crooks steal it and fasten the crime on an innocent man. It is far more satisfactory to see the picture when it is exhibited. The thieves take the gem out of its original setting and replace it with a fake one. Then they place the ring in the pocket of the innocent man. While he is in prison his friends employ detectives and soon the guilty men are arrested.
The accused man is released from jail, the criminals driven from the country and full happiness and restoration is enjoyed by the man who suffered and endured. Tomorrow, "The Birth of the Star Spangled Banner," an Edison two-reel historical drama and Hearst-Selig weekly. Coming, "The Spoilers," Rex Beach's famous Alaska story in nine reels.—Adv.Classified ads in the Bonanza will
